REPRESENTATIVES of an English-French syndicate are in this State, says the San Francisco Report, endeavoring to gain control and ownership of wineries. How many wineries the syndicate will buy or how many wineries it wants are details known only to the master minds of the deal, and from the very nature of the project are facts not very likely to be more widely known at present. The name of the new syndicate is "The Grape Brandy Distillers." The name does not tell it all, however, for the "Grape Brandy Distillers" is not confined either to grape brandy or distillers. The company was formed in London two months ago and has had an ostensible capital of £120,000, but a real capital of many times as much. The men who own its stock are directly interested in the spirit trade of London and in France. They are the wealthiest and most influential persons in the wine and brandy business of the world. The scheme, and this is the most important part of the news to California, is one altogether original. It is proposed to ship must from California to England and to France, and to distill it both in London and near Cognac in connection with Charente wine.

An cotemporary talks this way to people who are in the habit of borrowing their local newspaper: Did you ever pause to reflect that you are a nuisance of the first water? Do you know that the neighbor from whom you borrowed this very paper you are now reading is often greatly inconvenienced by you? He subscribes and pays for the paper for his own individual use and benefit; it is not done for your pleasure, education or comfort. He may not tell you so to your face, because the class of men who subscribe and pay for a newspaper are good kind-hearted fellows; but they do a good deal of thinking all the same when you ask for their newspaper. Stop borrowing, and you will stop making a nuisance of yourself.

MEDICAL authorities now say that sleeping with the mouth open is frequently the cause of deafness. When this subject of opening the mouth is more thoroughly understood, it will be seen that it is responsible for the larger share of human ills. It might have been thought, remarks an exchange, that an open mouth at night would be less harmful than at any other time. Even then it is not innocuous. Keeping the mouth open too much destroys the teeth, and by breathing through the mouth instead of the nostrils diseases of the throat and lungs are sure to follow.

As mentioned in these columns some weeks ago, the wine-makers of the Santa Clara Valley have rebelled against the San Francisco wine trust. As a result active warfare is about to commence. The wine-makers of that district will assume the aggressive, and will form a corporation with $250,000 of capital to be known as the Santa Clara Vineyard Proprietors, and will at once proceed to establish cellars wineries and a distillery. Nearly all the producers of the district are interested in the project.

Just as the train was leaving the Grand Central depot for the west, a boy accosted one of the passengers and asked: "Have an extra 'Sun'?" "Great Scott, no!" said the man. "Got a telegram in my pocket that there are twin boys at home."

When you begin to argue with a man and he talks loud, walk off and leave him. You can't convert him. - Ex.

After Many Years.

In the year 1400, or thereabouts, workmen were employed to put choir stalls in Lincoln cathedral, England, and were told in the early English vernacular of the day to hurry the job up, as several big functions were soon to come off. But lots of things happened; money got to be exceedingly scarce, and the men weren't paid very promptly. Although there were no Knights of Labor then, human nature was pretty much the same as it is now, and the men knocked off, remarking, "No pay, no work."

The clergy were so busy running the county political machine that they didn't have time to arrange the matter, and the finishing of the stalls was postponed from time to time until the present day. At last, however, dean and chapter think they see their way to complete this Fifteenth century job, and are calling for estimates from woodcarvers. England is a little slow, but she does get there after a few centuries. - New York Tribune.

The Germans and Parisian Society.

French feeling against Germany runs very high at the present moment. A member of the German embassy in Paris, who was recently over here, complained bitterly of the social ostracism to which he and his colleagues are subjected at the hands of the most polite nation Europe. No section of Parisian society asks them out except to purely official entertainments; they belong to no clubs, and would certainly be blackballed if they ventured to put up for any. The events connected with the unfortunate visit of the Empress Frederick, and the part the German Embassy played in her ill advised expedition to Versailles, have, of course, embittered the social relations of French and Germans in Paris not a little. - Fall Mall Gazette.

"Rats!"

Low Hayes, of Morgantown, W. Va., relates that a few days ago, while passing along the road near Collins's ferry, he noticed two large Norway rats going down a hill toward a stream, each rat holding an end of a straw. When they reached the water's edge the foremost rat waded in, still leading its companion, which, when it reached the water, stopped and drank eagerly. When the thirsty animal had finished drinking the other turned, and with the straw still in its mouth led the way to the top of the bank. When they reached the road Hayes killed the led rat, and found that it was totally blind, its eyes being completely gone. - Philadelphia Ledger.

Four of a Family Buried Together.

Four of the family of Adam H. Sconce, living about fifteen miles from Salem, Or., were buried side by side Sunday, all having died of la grippe. A young daughter died at 12 o'clock Friday night; at 1:30 her mother followed. The next night at 12 o'clock the father died, and at 1:30 o'clock his mother passed away. - San Francisco Bulletin.

Women and the Eight Hour Movement.

The question "What part are the women workers taking in the eight hour movement?" has been asked of seven prominent labor people. Their replies might all be summed up in the words "Not any." Those who are taking the active part in the eight hour movement are already working only nine hours, and their wages average three or four dollars a day. "There is no trade or women thoroughly organized, and until they are," says the secretary of the Working Women's society, "they can do nothing. Those who are in organizations are trying to get the state to regulate their hours of labor, and it seems positively brutal, from more than one point of view, to think that we women are asking that our sisters shall not be allowed to work more than ten hours a day. Ten hours is now considered a brutally long day by those men who are striking for eight hours. But these men have excellent wages even for that short time, while the women of New York, if they worked even longer hours, could not make an honest living. And even this simple demand we could not obtain."

The eight hour movement is an argument in favor of organizations of women separate from men. The men of a trade are naturally selfish; they consider their interests first, consequently reforms in the condition of women are tardy. And it always will be so until women themselves take up these problems. That, too, is one of the rather hopeless things. Women are not usually good material in a labor organization. There are always outside influences - home ties that are brought forcibly to bear upon their actions at the critical moment. Then most girls feel that they won't have to work always, that they will soon have a home of their own. This has much to do with retarding organization among women. That it will be a great many years before women will have the eight hour work day is the general opinion. It may be true to say that working women receive smaller pay and invariably work longer hours than men.

The girl who is a saleswoman works in the better class of stores nine and one-half hours four days in the week and thirteen hours the remaining days. In the smaller places she usually spends thirteen or fourteen hours every day, sometimes in a seven day week. If she is employed in a shirt factory, or if she makes gloves, overalls, jumpers, under-dresses or flannels, she works ten hours in the factory because the law compels the manufacturer not to employ her longer, and then takes home work enough to keep her busy until 11 or 12 o'clock at night. If she is a dressmaker, milliner or tailor she considers herself lucky to get four hours' work in the dull season and works sixteen in the "drag." If she is employed in a restaurant she works from 7 a. m. to 10 p. m. - New York Recorder.

Another Vanderbilt Yacht.

Mr. Fred Vanderbilt was so much pleased with the excursions which he had upon James Gordon Bennett's yacht the Naumonia and his brother's noble steam yacht, the Alva, that for the first time in his life he became quite interested with steam yachting, and determined upon his return to America to have one built for him. But by the merest chance he found in England a very fine yacht for sale. It is the Conqueror, and while not so perfect a specimen of steam yachting architecture as is the Alva, yet is a very staunch and convenient vessel.

Mr. Vanderbilt bought it, after inspection, and expects to take his first cruise in it with his family and a small party. He will sail from one of the English ports and visit Norway and Sweden, so as to arrive by the middle of June at the Land of the Midnight Sun. He will not return to America in the yacht, but it will be brought over for him. He may see in his return pass at sea his brother Cornelius and Chanancy M. Depew, who expect to sail early in July. - New York Cor Philadelphia Press.

Easy Fishing in Texas.

Friday night L. Frankel, Mr. Smith, Miss Isadore Smith and others got into a skiff and started up the stream, rowing up among the water lilies and flags. The river was exceedingly muddy from the rain, and before the boat had proceeded far a large bass leaped from the water into the boat. It was followed by another and another, until within the space of a few minutes there were fifteen flapping, flourishing bass in the bottom of the boat, ranging from half a pound to three pounds in weight.

The action of these fish cannot be accounted for, as there was no light whatever in the boat. Several of the larger fish attempting these acrobatic feats jumped entirely over the boat. - San Antonio Express.

An Unnecessary If.

During the recent visit of Jay Gould, of New York, and his daughter to this city they were taken through the treasury building and, of course, into the money room. There, as is usual, the guide gave them the opportunity of holding $1,000,000 in their hands. The Hibernian guide, who had no idea who the visitors were, remarked: "Och, miss, aff yez only owned the loikes as that, now yez wouldn't be nadder'ly worry about where yez would be getting your spring wraps at ahl, at ahl." - Washington Cor Philadelphia Record.

A Missing Tar Heel.

A North Carolina man exploded twenty pounds of gunpowder under a mass of rock on the side of a mountain to loosen it, and the shock sent five acres of rocks, soil and trees rushing down for half a mile to fill up a valley and create a lake a mile and a half long. He has not been seen since the rush. - Detroit Free Press.

Across the Deep, to the Far West. On steamboats, cars and stage-coaches. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is carried as the most important item in the materia medica of the traveling public. It deprives vitiated, brackish water of its hurtful properties and excitable flavor, counteracts the pernicious effects upon the stomach of bad or indigestible food, remedies cramps, heartburn and wind upon the stomach. It is a fine defense against malarial disorders, quashes the effects of excessive heat, cold and damp, relieves sick headache, and is an incomparable cure for constiveness and biliousness. The fatigue of travel often tells most disastrously upon invalids and convalescents, occasionally to such an extent as to jeopardize life. Persons in feeble health, apprehensive of bad effects from travel, will, if provided with the Bitters, be far less likely to have their fears realized.

Will He Go Next?

A certain young man in Astoria is feeling decidedly shaky over the report of a homicide in the San Francisco papers of Sunday. It is not the report of a single tragedy, however, that affects his nerves, but the fact that he was once intimately connected with the victims of four homicides. In 1883 five young men were expelled from a California military college for dragging a pompous and insulting drill master from his bed and pelting him with frost bitten potatoes and decayed apples.

In 1888 Dan Greenwell, one of the five, was shot and instantly killed in a row in Bodie. In 1889 Marshal Nicholson, another of the insubordinate students, was killed in northern California by an unknown assassin, and who lay in wait by the roadside and shot him through the head with a charge of buckshot. In 1890 Percy Williams, the third student, a brother of Sherrod Williams, who was formerly employed here by William T. Coleman & Co., was shot in a quarrel in Tulare, Cal., the result of a dispute over a horse race.

Recently in San Francisco Russell L. Thompson was shot through the head by his insane father-in-law while asleep. Thus four of the five students have been shot, one in each year since 1887, leaving but one, who is meditating a dose of morphine to baffle the fate reserved for him in 1893.—Astoria Bulletin.

An English Club Man Dead.

The death of Mr. George Cavendish Bentinck came as a surprise to all, for though he had been in failing health for some time past, yet no serious alarm was entertained as to his ultimate safety. Indeed, only a few days previous to his death Mrs. Bentinck was on a visit to her younger daughter, Mrs. James, and certainly then no grave anxiety was felt on his account. Mr. Bentinck was one of the founders of the well known amateur acting club, the "Old Stagers," which was to celebrate its jubilee during the cricket week at Canterbury this year. Indeed, Mr. Bentinck was to have been the hero of the coming festivities, for if not the last he was certainly the oldest of the original band that organized the club. "Little Ben," as he was generally called, was a great connoisseur in art, besides being an enthusiastic collector. His house in Grosvenor street was a positive museum, but there is little likelihood of its many treasures being put up for sale. The late Mr. Bentinck's eldest son married Miss Livingstone, a daughter of Mr. Matrimon Livingstone, of New York.—London Truth.

Bachelors Do Their Own Cooking.

There is a widely popular fad among New York bachelors for domestic cookery. It is quite English, you know. There are more men about town experimenting with a chafing dish than most people imagine. They get their own simple breakfast at first, then carefully and gradually branch out in the broader fields of the culinary art. "There is more amusement in this thing," said one of these amateurs, "than anything I've struck for a long time. I have a little alcohol lamp that you could put in your pocket, and with this little lamp and a chafing dish I can turn out a good many palatable things. A friend of mine in the same house took breakfast with me one Sunday morning. Now he's got it. It isn't much trouble. It lends the needed variety to everyday life. It saves a right good bit of money too. Though I took it up originally as an amusement, it is a sensible and highly satisfactory way to live."—New York Herald.

Fishing in the Alleghenies.

Good trout fishing need not be expected this summer in the Blue Ridge and Allegheny mountains, for the recent heavy rains have played sad havoc with the finny tribe. The rainfall in the south has been without precedent, and the mountain streams have filled the rivers and either scattered the trout or killed them by their being left on the lowlands and swamps by the receding waters. The same fate has befallen that game fish the black bass. Every river south of Baltimore and Washington has been overflowing its banks continuously for the past two months. Long continued spring freshets are disastrous to the fish. On the other hand, all kinds of game in the south have wintered nicely. Bob White is likely to be in great abundance next fall.—Harper's Weekly.

His Kindness Caused His Death.

Frequently a man loses his life while risking it in the performance of a deed of bravery and daring, but it is seldom that life is sacrificed in the mere performance of a kind deed. But it is thought the death of John N. Ames, formerly of Camden, which occurred in Detroit recently, was caused in this way. He took a sick, friendless boy from the street into his office, wrapped him in his own overcoat, and notified the authorities, who took the boy to the hospital, where he soon died of malignant diphtheria. Mr. Ames was soon taken with the same disease and died.—Rockland (Me.) Courier-Gazette.

King Otto, Bavaria's crazy sovereign, is physically healthy, but is tormented with voluntary starvation in consequence of his frequent refusals to eat for two or three days. Occasionally he becomes violent, is imprisoned in a padded cell, and exhausts himself by shouting and trying to tear down the iron bars of the window. Sometimes he is the victim of an uncontrollable fear of carpets, and refuses to step on one lest he might plunge into the chasm which he imagines yawns before him.

THE COWBOY KNOWS!

THE COWBOY KNOWS!

Trying to hold a drove of cattle together in a drenching rain means an amount of exposure which few can withstand without serious results. If sickness does not follow, it will be found that such hardship usually brings on rheumatism and similar complaints as many times as a "Fish Brand Slicker" is worth its weight in gold, and is available to any one exposed to stormy weather. For all saddle uses, you want a "Pompe Slicker," which keeps the entire saddle, pommel, and cantle dry, and completely eases the rider from head to foot. For can't get out, whatever the weather. And, besides keeping him dry, it keeps him warm. Every range rider has one. Why shouldn't you? Beware of worthless imitations; every garment stamped with "Fish Brand" Trade Mark. Don't accept any inferior coat when you can have the "Fish Brand Slicker" covered without extra cost. Particulars and illustrated catalogue free.
